JACK BURKE MEETS DEATH IN BATTLE WITH FISHERMAN

Jack Burke, of 298 Vista Grande avenue, Daly City, former game warden, and Allan Curry, of 1534 Van Ness avenue, San Francisco, state fish and game warden, met death about 5 o'clock last Wednesday morning in a battle with Antone Anderson, aged 60, a fisherman. Anderson was shot through both lungs, twice in the right arm and once in the hand.

Following the battle between the three men, Anderson piloted his blood-spattered fishing vessel to Meigg's Wharf, bringing the bodies of his two victims.

Anderson declared, when he was assisted from the boat: "They tried to take my boat and I let them have it."

Later Anderson made a statement in which he said: "They came aboard about 5 o'clock. Burke said I was fishing in an illegal place. He demanded my nets and told me to go to South San Francisco.

"I said I would go to Meiggs Wharf. I told them the commission said my fishing places were all right two years ago.

"Then Burke shot at me. I ran into the cabin and got a shotgun and my .38. I shot back.

"I was within my rights. I just bought a $500 net. I wasn't going to give that to anybody."

When Anderson's boat landed at Meiggs Wharf, officers went aboard. The bodies of Burke and Curry were found. Beside the bodies of the officials lay their service pistols. The chambers in Curry's weapon were empty. Burke had fired five shots.

Anderson had used an antiquated pistol and a heavy gauge repeating shotgun. Five shots had been fired from the pistol and three from the shotgun.

Jack Burke was a game warden until six months ago. He figured prominently as a government witness in the Brassfield liquor case, in which he was a star witness against three policemen accused of smuggling.

He leaves a widow, Margaret, and three children, John and Rita, 24, twins, and George, 20. Burke was 49 years of age.

Curry is survived by an aged mother, who collapsed when she heard of his death. Anderson is a bachelor. Along the waterfront he is known as an old deep water man, a recluse and a fine fisherman.

In the officials' dory were a pair of binoculars and leather jackets. C. R. Peck, deputy fish and game commissioner, said Curry had been assigned to watch Anderson for a month. He was suspected of "anchoring his nets," Peck said.

Captain Walter R. Welch, of the volunteer wardens, claimed Anderson also was suspected of rum running. No liquor was found, however. Curry apparently picked Burke as an aide, knowing him from his years of service with the fish and game commission.

From statements alleged to have been made by relatives of Burke and Curry, police believe that Curry had been watching for Anderson for some time. It is known that Anderson's boat was fishing off South San Francisco as early as last Monday, and that both Burke and Curry were watching it from the shore. Burke was a close personal friend of Curry, and is said to have told friends that he expected reappointed to the fish and game commission within a few days.

It seems to be the general belief that Burke and Curry finally visited Anderson's boat early Wednesday morning, and accused Anderson of violating the state fish and game law. Curry left his home Tuesday night, saying that he was going out on a case. Burke also was missing from Daly City late that night, and it is belived the two men formed a rendezvous and boarded the Anderson craft from Curry's official boat. Then came the shooting, which Anderson declares was begun by Burke. Probably no one but Anderson will ever really known who began the shooting. At any rate, both Burke and Curry fell dead, and Anderson brought his boat to the shore and was taken to the hospital.

Anderson is said to have been an old offender, and he and Burke knew each other only too well. Burke, while deputy fish and game commissioner, is said to have arrested Anderson some three years ago, confiscated his net, and Anderson paid a fine of $1,000.

SINGLE AND MARRIED MEN TO PLAY BALL

Well, folks, the biggest event of the year has arrived. In fact, the biggest event since the burning of Rome; also the biggest ever held in Daly City.

Next Snuday, May 4, the married men are going to play the single men at Jefferson high play grounds in a game of baseball. That is, we hope it will be a ball game, and not a football game. The popular rooting section of the single men's ball team will be in full sway. Both teams will be supplied with some stars of yesterday.

The married men have received permission from their wives to play next Sunday. We also hope that the married men will bring their wives along, as they sure will need their support.

Come early, you single rooters, as there will not be much room left for seats, as they are going fast.

The odds at this time favor the single men, as they are relying on their old stand-by in the pitching department; and also are backed by a strong and experienced catcher in little Mickey White. A chicken dinner is at stake in this ball game, so there will be a hard battle, as the single men believe that the married men are going to import some very dark horses. The game starts at 10:30 next Sunday, May 4, so all you rooters don't fail to see this game, as it will be worth while.

VETERANS MOBILIZE FOR EMERGENCIES

Between May 15 and May 31, each of the 380 Posts of the American Legion in California will stage a "dress rehearsal" of the state-wide plan of the organization for a mobilization of all of the ex-service men of the state for an "emergency" service.

The mobilization to be held under the direction of the emergency commission of the American Legion, headed by Charles P. Daly, will be at a later date and is a part of the general program for community and state betterment outlined by the American Legion. The American Legion officials in each community will arrange with local community officials to designate an imaginary "disaster" that has befallen the community, designating the number of persons supposed to be in jeopardy, the number of homeless, and the number of citizens to be cared for, and the Legionnaires will execute plans for meeting the "emergency."

APPRECIATE LOYAL WORKER

General Pershing P. T. A. feels very proud of our members, Mrs. Lillian Landini, who has acted as chairman of magazines and pins, for the last year, and now will go to a larger field of endeavor, that of fourth vice-president of San Mateo, or Seventeenth District. RAIN HALTS GAME IN THIRD INNING

The Daly City Merchants' baseball team has not played a full game for three weeks. On April 13, rain halted the contest between the Brotherhood of S. P. Railway Clerks and the local nine in the fifth inning. Easter Sunday they were not booked. Last Sunday weather conditions prevented more than three innings of competition between the Merchants and Levy & Zentner.

During the past week, Manager Ed Cavagnaro has strengthened the local team considerably. Pat Sloan, a hard hitting baseman, returned to the lineup after a tryout in the Arizona state league, and Bill Thompson has been signed for mound duty in the future.

The Merchants will play on the local grounds again this Sunday. A return contest between the Brotherhood of S. P. Railway Clerks, or the Levy & Zentner nine will probably be arranged. A game with the Local Thirties is also in the making.

An added feature to the main event Sunday will be a game between the local married men and single men. This contest will start at 10:30.

Due to the rivalry between these teams, the officiating staff will consist of four umpires. Members of the local nine will fill these berths. The contestants include local business men and baseball enthusiasts, who desire to show what they know about the game.

BIGGEST WHIST OF THE SEASON

The Native Daughters and the Native Sons, both El Carmelo Parlors, are to give a real whist tournament in the municipal hall on May 14. Magnificent preparations are being made. An unusually large attendance of enthusiasts are expected to be present. Put the date down on your list of engagements as one you can not afford to miss, for assuredly it will prove to be a social event for every one.

On Friday the election of officers was held, Mrs. J. R. Spann being elected president for the next year. Our own Mrs. Landini was elected fourth vice-president.

The afternoon passed very quickly, as the band formed of girls and boys from the high school rendered three fine selections. A wonderful speaker, James Samuel Lacy, gave a lecture on Child Welfare. This was enjoyed by all the members.

3-UNIT PLAN FOR WATER DISTRICT

San Mateo, Burlingame and Hillsborough will proceed with their plans to form a separate water district for the three cities of the central section of the county. At least this was apparent from the expressions of the representatives of the three municipalities at the meeting of the councilmen and other officials of the thirteen cities of San Mateo county held last Friday night at tthe Benjamin Franklin Hotel in San Mateo.

At the close of the meeting, which was presided over by Councilman P. A. McCarthy of Redwood City, a poll was taken to show the preference of those present for a single district or for three districts, one in the northern section of the county, one in the middle section, and one in the southern part, and the vote showed a slight advantage of the single unit plan. It was understood, however, that this poll was unofficial and merely taken to sound the sentiment of those present.

In the poll taken, Ira H. Potter, representing the mayor of South San Francisco, voted for the three unit plan. The representatives of San Mateo, Burlingame and Hillsborough for the three districts, with the exception of Martin Poss, of San Mateo, who while in favor of the three unit plan, thought a survey should be made first by experts to determine the best and most economical plan. Belmont, San Carlos and Redwood City voted in favor of the single unit plan, while Menlo Park and Lomita Park were divided.

Chairman McCarthy suggested that the proper way to proceed would be to employ an engineering expert of renown, not a resident of San Mateo county, to make a disinterested and non-partisan investigation and recommend the most feasible plan for solving the water problem. The plan met with the approval of the majority of those present, but with no plan of financing such a project being apparent, no action was taken in the matter.

In calling the meeting to order, Chairman McCarthy very ably outlined the various developments in the movement to solve the water problem on the peninsula and explained that the meeting had been called by the representatives of the five southern cities in the hope that a free and friendly discussion of tthe problem might bring about the correct solution. James R. Murphy, city clerk of Burlingame, was unanimously chosen to act as secretary of the meeting.

POPULAR SERVICES AT GRACE CHURCH

If you like good Gospel hymn singing you are invited to attend the evening services of the Presbyterian church at Hanover and Evergreen. The old hymns are as popular as ever and special music is usually an agreeable feature. Last Sunday evening a Boys' Trio rendered some of the old hymns in a new way, when Ralph Cook, Albert Chesterman and Lawrence Tompsett sang together. Increasing attendances show that this form of service meets a real need in the life of the people. At Sunday's service the pastor will continue his discourse on "The Church," and will show from the Bible what God intended the Church to be. It is well worth while to study this wonderful institution, for an organization which is destined to last as long as the human race continues on this earth is surely worthy of more than casual study.

The Sunday school contest is increasing in interest as it draws to a close and the attendances are better than ever.

PEDESTRIAN IS RUN DOWN BY WEALTHY CLUBMAN'S CAR

Contract for furnishing electric power to operate the powerful motors which will raise and lower the 336-foot lift span in the Southern Pacific's double track railroad bridge at Martinez has been awarded to the Pacific Gas & Electric Company. The lift span, which will permit the passing of the tallest masted vessels entering San Francisco Bay, will be electrically operated, although a gasoline engine will be installed as stand-by motive power for use in the event of electric power failure. The electric motors will raise the span in 90 seconds. Automatic locking devices will be installed which will make operation of trains over the bridge and operation of the lift span absolutely foolproof. The 506-foot deck span was successfully moved from between piers 11 and 12 to the piling where it will be cut down to a little over 300 feet to form the false work for erecting the lift span.

Federal contribution of $50,000 to continue salt water barrier studies was lauded by Governor Young as indicative of the National Government's interest in California water problems and its assistance to the State under the Hoover-Young water resources investigation agreement. Governor Young said the appropriation is in line with President Hoover's agreement for co-operation. California's need for financial and engineering assistance was laid before the government by Governor Young and Bert B. Meek, director of public works. The governor pointed out a corps of federal engineers is now in California, and California is launched upon the most complete water investigation ever undertaken by any State.

He swung himself out, thrusting against the rock, and when the ogres of the water pit dragged at their victims Carla was in his arms. His brain was keenly alive again, and he knew that teams of oxen could have pulled but futilely against the undercurrents, which, one after another, were transporting them irresistibly and yet without great haste through watery space. Thought of physical salvation scarcely filtered in a ray of hope through his mind, and his senses were unterrified by the suffocating presence of death. In Carla were his strength and courage. He locked his arms about her closely. He could feel her clinging to him with the same desire to remain inseparable when the end came. Strange. A kingdom of Micomicon—a land of Al-naschar—a place of fairies—a world of dreams— They were going to it all. Between the walls where no man had ever looked. Death! A magnificent adventure, with Carla in his arms! A roaring filled his ears. They were traveling swiftly now. His senses grew less distinct, like colors merging one into another in a sunset sky. Queer, why it should end like this, after years of life—he—and Carla—together—as it must have been intended from the beginning. A glorious graciousness of Fate, an immortal symphony of fulfilment—to pass on like this with Carla, no matter how many hundred centuries had gone before! And some one—his wife—had said—that seconds meant more than years—when—like this--

The roaring was an enormity of sound. Its wailing was like the wind in the cave of Aeolus, its thunder like Stentor's blasts rumbling through the empty bowels of the earth. They numbed and anesthetized, yet left him with a shred of living, thinking cells which told him they were tearing through the gullet of the gorge, and which, at the same time, held his arms unyielding as bands of steel about Carla's body.

Although close to the edge of an abyss of utter darkness, consciousness did not quite leave him. Vaguely he experienced the thrill of being transported out of a hell of tumultuous sound into a soft and gently drifting sea which was without noise or violence. For an interval he fancied his arms were wings and that he was trying to fly, making rather a bad mess of it because one side of him refused to co-ordinate with the other. This was the arm, only one arm now, which held Carla. With the other, after a little, he found himself clawing and digging into something. A man may live a hundred years, but when he is ready to die and looks back over the path he has traveled, it seems very short, and the hundred years no more than a few hours. Paul had reflected upon the illusory and baseless fabric of time, its inadequacy and the hollowness of its human measurement. "One who is happy has but a fleeting vision of life," Carla had said to him once. "To live long and terribly, one must be unhappy—in prison." It was odd why he should be thinking of this as he continued to claw and dig. But time had fastened itself upon him like a leech, and if each second of his wide-awake life had been as long as these few seconds he would have lived a thousand years. During this cycle of his existence he slowly and tediously progressed, until, with air filling his lungs again, and the smothering folds of near-insensibility breaking away from him, he knew that he was no longer in water, that his fingers were clutching at soft sand, and that the burden which he had dragged with him was Carla.

There was scarcely a breath between this knowledge and the full and poignant possession of every faculty with which his brain was capable of being inspired. But darkness, mystery, the defeat of death, and the fact of his own physical salvation were submerged all at once in an agonized appeal to the limp, dead form which he clasped in his arms. The spirits of the sable blackness about him listened to his voice calling Carla's name as he struggled to bring life back into her body. Once he had worked over a little girl who had been taken from the water, and now memory came to him vividly of the first gentle beating of the heart again, the slow returning of the soul into the tender body, until the child lived and breathed once more. But Carla's soft breast gave no response. Her lips were cold and lifeless, and, at last, believing her surely dead, he held her face close to him, and kissed her mouth and eyes, as the father of the little girl had kissed his child when she was returning to him. When the first whisper of breath came from Carla's lips he was holding her like this, staring into the blackness. Her heart, beating faintly, responded to the call of life close against his own. Her lips grew warm. Her eyes opened. Paul kissed her again in the blackness that shut them in and found that she was alive.

He did not cry out or speak, but brushed her thick, wet hair back and pressed his face close to hers, and waited. In her first consciousness Carla's arms crept about his neck. Her lips breathed his name. Words were futile for a little while. Only in silence could they claim each other, a silence of voice, where other sound was moaning and throbbing about them. Both knew what it meant as the seconds counted themselves off. They had come through the mouth of the gorge, and were caught in a subterranean hole of the earth. Chance. A miracle. God. That they might have each other at last, with the barrier between them torn away. This was Carla's thought, and her arms drew closer about Paul. He belonged to her now, for there was no other world than this—a pit of gloom with death for its walls, an abysmal grave, where love, for a space, would build for them "the great world's altar stairs that slope through darkness up to God."

She almost spoke the words. Instead she whispered:

"It was right for me to come, Paul? You are—glad?"

"I know—now—that I expected you," said Paul.

CHAPTER IX

After a time they were standing in the blackness.

More distinctly the hollow, rumbling sound about them began to impinge itself upon their ears as Paul supported Carla against his breast. They listened, as if for a voice, his lips pressing against her hair, where they had so long wanted to rest. What they heard was unlike anything out in the world of sun and sky. The roaring and wailing were gone, and in their place was a phantom-like cadence that moved and stirred about them, but which seemed to come mostly from a vast dome over their heads. It was like something trying to escape, throbbing until it seemed to be beating with little clubs at the drums of their ears when it was nearest, then leaving them to intone and hum like a huge tuning fork through the shut-in sea of gloom. There was no break in the sonorous sameness of it. It was eternity of sound without change. In a little while it could drive a living thing mad.

"I am not afraid," Carla said. "Are you?"

Her voice was no different than if the sun had been shining, and there was something in it for him which had never been there before. A kind of exultation came with it, a gladness which trembled in the darkness, and which sent shame and triumph sweeping over him in a submerging emotion.

"Afraid? Good G—d, no!"

She drew herself out of his arms and stood beside him, with her hand in his. Their voices had broken down a tenseness about them, and life drew closer, more sure. He wanted to see her, and fumbled in his sodden pocket for his metal box of matches.

"I'm going to strike a light, Carla. I want to look at you!"

A flare of yellow flame made a hole in the blackness. Until it died out their eyes devoured each other. Carla was like an angel. Love, transforming death into a happy incident, was an uncovered glory in her eyes at last, clearly revealed for him to see.

He knew that only the positiveness of their fate could make her look at him like this, with Claire living and waiting in another world outside. Claire seemed infinitely removed from him, a century away, a glow of memory—like star dust, yet he thought of her as the match went out. His wife would go on living. He and Carla were about to die. He had seen understanding and sureness in the shining depths of Carla's eyes when the tiny flame had illumined their faces. She had let him know, without words, that earth bonds were stricken from her, because there was no longer an earth for either of them. For a few hours they were to be in a world all their own. Then—their couch of everlasting sleep—together. He felt a spiritual reaction from the oppression of horror and fear which had come upon him. To feel sure that Carla knew, and that she had given herself to him because of her knowledge—that she was not afraid, but was happy in the freedom which an approaching termination of life made possible for them, filled him with an emotion which took from their brief future its stark and ugly grimness and gave to it an almost joyous aspect.

Feat of "Walking" on Water

It is a fact that a man did "walk" from St. Louis to New Orleans on the Mississippi river. This fact is attested by old residents of New Orleans and of several of the smaller cities between New Orleans and Vicksburg, Miss. The time of his arrival at New Orleans is approximately fixed as being in the month of May, in the year 1917 or 1918. No record of the man's name or previous history is available. His "walking" was accomplished by means of small pontoons or boats probably 3 or 4 feet long and 1 foot wide, strapped to his feet in much the same manner as would be snowshoes, and he shuffled along the surface of the water as one would on snowshoes. His wife followed him closely in a skiff, and, wherever possible, they stopped at night at the most convenient town or settlement en route.

PENNANT BATTLE SEEN AS CLOSE

Majority of Clubs in Big League Are Stronger.

This will be a "hard year" in which to win baseball pennants.

Twelve of the sixteen clubs in the National and American Leagues have been improved, writes G. W. Daley in the New York World. Some of them have been improved greatly.

There will be keener competition. The National league can expect no runaway race such as the Cubs put on last year. The New York Giants and the Pittsburgh Pirates of last year's first division clubs will be better. The Brooklyn Robins, the Cincinnati Reds and the Phillies of the second division clubs, all will be stronger. The St. Louis Cardinals, a good club, but finishing only fourth, has apparently stood still, while no great improvement, if any, is noticeable in the Boston Braves.

In the American league only Washington and Boston seem to have stood still. The world's champion Athletics and the Yankees, the runners-up, have been braced for another struggle. But in addition three other clubs have been greatly strengthened and they are coming to plague last year's leaders. They are the Cleveland Indians, the Detroit Tigers and the Chicago White Sox.

The chances against any repetition of the rush of the A's to an 18-game lead seem very remote this season, and except for the Boston club the teams should be well bunched.

Although Yale won 115 athletic events during the indoor season now drawing to a close and lost but 33, the 1929-30 winter will not go down in the Yale records as even approaching the best that Yale has done in the field of winter sports competition. With the final returns from fencing still to come in, Yale has only one clear-cut intercollegiate championship to its credit this winter, whereas in past indoor seasons the Blue has made it a habit to usurp the titles all along the line.

Jack Quinn, veteran spitball hurler of the world champion Athletics, is ambitious to set a record for service in big league baseball. Quinn at this time is the only pitcher in either league who was in the majors 20 years ago. The veteran broke in in 1909, which is 21 years ago, and aside from Grover Alexander, who is again with the Phillies of the National league, no other twirler of the current crop was in the majors before 1912.

In these days of special trains and luxurious accommodations for traveling college athletes, the Oklahoma Aggies' wrestling team presents a contrast for those inclined to object to over-emphasis in sport.

The Aggies' team, eight contestants and their coach, traveled the 2,000 miles from Tulsa to Penn State college for the national collegiate championships in two inexpensive automobiles.

It may not be an example of cause and effect, but the Aggies won the team title for the third straight year.

By the way of an anecdote or two: Bob Hart, now chief of the New England league's umpire staff, recalls the game at Pittsburgh where Hank O'Day ruled foul on a long fly that went into the stand. Several days later, a fan sued the club for damages and proved the ball landed four feet inside the foul line—he was on the receiving end.

On another occasion, Hart, Bill Donovan and O'Day, behind the plate, called a player out on strikes. Later Donovan ruled the same performer out at first on a close play. Still later he was declared out by Hart at third base, trying to stretch a double to a triple. As he dusted himself off, the player remarked to Hart: "Say, what chance as a Wop got against three Irishmen?"

The Indianapolis motor speedway announces the entry of Juan A. Gaudino, South American racing champion, for the annual 500-mile automobile race to be staged here May 30.

Gaudino will drive an American car which he has used successfully in winter racing in his own country, it was said. He won the last Gran Premio Nacional, an 800-mile road race in South America.

The last South American drivers to compete in the local race were here in 1923.

Dick Harlow, western Maryland athletic director and coach, who is the new president of the Eastern Intercollegiate Boxing association, favors a change in conducting the tournaments. Harlow is against "blind draws" but will consult the officials of the respective colleges before inaugurating reforms he has in mind.

The Ross-Ade stadium of Purdue university, which has been in use since 1924, only partially completed, will receive the finishing touches during the summer. This was the verdict of university trustees and directors of the Ross-Ade foundation who held their quarterly meeting at Purdue. The new work will give the stadium nearly 10,000 more seats, making a total of 23,300, and will cost approximately $70,000.

GINGERBREAD PARTY

"I have a secret," said the Queen of the Fairies, "but first of all you must go around and ask the guests to come to the party.

"I want this to be a big party."

"Hurrah," shouted the little fairies. "Tell us the ones to ask."

"We'll ask the elves," said the Fairy Queen.

"That's good," said the little fairies. "The elves are such dears."

"And we'll ask the brownies, too," said the Queen of the Fairies.

"Oh, they're such fun," said Fairy Princess Joy.

"And, of course, we'll have to ask old Mr. Giant. A party wouldn't be quite complete without him.

"And we'll ask Witty Witch."

"Let me ask her," shouted Princess Twilight-Bell.

And the Fairly Queen consented.

"We'll have to ask the gnomes and the goblins," said the Fairy Queen. "We want to have them come.

"It's to be a big party and we must have all our friends."

"Oh, that's fine! I'm so glad that it is to be a big party," said Fairy Ybab.

"Indeed it will be," said the Fairy Queen. "I want to have this party tomorrow, so you'd better all start with your invitations.

"Then, when you come back, I'll let you all into the great gingerbread and ice cream party secret that I have.

"One, two, three, go!"

At that all the little fairies started off.

They carried their invitations on bits of birch bark, and they were written in letters made out of soft moss.

They looked very lovely and the fairies were proud of taking such invitations.

The Fairy Queen had made them all herself, and there were lots and lots of them, as you can imagine.

Every single guest had to have a separate invitation, and the Fairy Queen had spent a lot of time making them, as you can realize.

This is what the invitations said:

"The Fairy Queen and the little fairies invite you to a gingerbread and ice cream party tomorrow afternoon. Come at three o'clock, and most important of all—be hungry."

The guests were all on time the next afternoon.

But when they arrived not a fairy was to be seen. That was the first surprise.

And then the fairies arrived, riding in a splendid chariot drawn by prancing ponies.

The capes of the fairies were made of gingerbread, and as they stepped down from the chariot they told the guests to begin eating of their capes, and then they handed them moss baskets in which were ice cream.

Oh, it was a glorious supper party, and a great surprise to everyone.

Remembers Kind Friend

A man who was fond of dogs picked up a stray mongrel puppy, which he then sold to a commercial traveler living about three miles away.

Nearly six months afterwards the dog reappeared and was sent back. Six months later she returned. This time her friend waited to see what would happen. After much show of pleasure at being with him she returned to her home of her own accord. A third return visit was paid to him after a few more months, and on her next visit she was accompanied by two puppies; but she shortly afterwards took them home again.

After that she was run over, and that seemed the end, but about the time when she might have been expected had she lived, the two puppies arrived.

Does it not seem as if, in some way, she had passed on to her young the feelings of remembrance and gratitude she felt for one who had been a benefactor to her?

TRADITION

How rich is the heritage of the American citizen. Youthful, as nations go, we are rich in tradition and history. As time is measured, it has not been long since America, as a nation, consisted of a few scattered villages and hamlets along the Atlantic seaboard.

Fortunately these humble communities harbored men and women imbued with the pioneer spirit, the spirit that has passed down from generation to generation and made possible the American of today.

These pioneers of yesterday overcame unbelievable obstacles to found a nation that should one day span a continent. Peril and hardship were their daily lot, but they fought through for the sake of their dream, that we who come after them should have security and prosperity.

These pioneers of yesterday have endowed every nook and corner of America with a wealth of tradition. There is not a community in our land that is not indebted to them, and we who now enjoy the fruits of their labor and vision owe them the debt of completing the work they so well began. The spirit of the pioneer calls out of the past for us to carry on.

Where better can we start than right here in Daly City? Here, as elsewhere, the civic founders dreamed of an ideal community, and for their sake and the sake of the ones who come after us, we must do our share.

Note the challenge in the Community Development page found elsewhere in this issue, made possible by our loyal business and professional firms. It is a message worthy of our utmost consideration.

BIG GANG MERGER

Mergers have loomed large in the news of the day for quite a while. A few days ago a new combination of unusual interest was effected in Chicago, according to the Associated Press which said:

"The amalgamation of the Capone and Moran factions, heretofore at odds with each other over liquor, gambling and the vice traffic, has the reported purpose of ending the gang gunnery which has been responsible for hundreds of deaths in recent years, and the co-ordination of all major gang enterprises for the purpose of increased power and profits."

For several years rival groups of gangsters in Chicago have fought each other for the rich money rewards of organized crime. This gang warfare has been carried on with almost unbelievable savagery, with shootings, bombings, sluggings and every form of violence. Seven members of the Moran gang were slain with sawed-off shot guns and machine guns in a garage in broad daylight on February 14, 1929. The total number of gang killings will never be known.

Now, according to the report, the two most powerful gangs have effected a merger to bootleg, rob and racketeer in concert, reserving their bullets for such law officials and citizens as may interfere with their program.

The new arrangement may mean greater comfort and profit for the bandits, but it does not promise much advantage for the general public. It is not likely, however, that the truce will continue very long. Gunmen will be gunmen.

THE NEW NAVAL PACT

Although the five-power naval treaty for the limitation of armaments which it was hoped to make effective at the London conference has not been realized, a three-power agreement has been made between the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

Under the new treaty President Hoover declares the United States will spend about a billion dollars less on new warships than would have been spent if the conference had not been held.

In other words while we must still spend about 600 million dollars to bring our navy up to parity with Great Britain, the plans previously made would have caused the expenditure of 1,600 million dollars.

While the new treaty does limit naval construction it does not really reduce the size of existing navies. Furthermore, the treaty contains a clause which will permit the three powers to further increase their navies in case other nations which are not in the agreement enter upon an excessive building campaign.

It is hoped that France and Italy may be brought into the agreement later, but at London all efforts to reconcile the demands of these two countries were unavailing.

So, although the conference did not accomplish nearly all that was hoped for, it can hardly be said to have been a failure.

SILENCE OF THE GRAVE

Before Harry Houdini died, that greatest of magicians agreed with his wife that he would try to communicate with her from the spirit world, although he had long scoffed at spiritualism. Ever since his death in 1926 his widow has watched and waited for a message.

A few days ago Mrs. Houdini confessed that she had abandoned hope of ever having a communication from beyond the grave, and said: "The silence is impenetrable; there is only a void."

On the same day that she made this statement, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, one of the most eminent of living spiritualists, resigned from the Society of Psychical Research because the learned members of that body refuses to accept as authentic any of the many reported messages from the "other world."

After 48 years of painstaking investigation of thousands of alleged communications through mediums and relatives of deceased persons, the society has not found a single one which stood the test of scientific examination.

Yet many sincere persons believe that they have had such communications, and no one could convince them to the contrary, so strong is the power of belief and imagination.

LABOR AND SUGAR

Recently a new phase of the sugar tariff question was brought out by Senator Harris of Georgia, who declared that the advocates of a high sugar tariff were inconsistent in their plea for protection to American labor.

He was speaking in advocacy of his bill to apply the immigration quota to Mexico and other countries of the western hemisphere, and asserted that a million Mexican laborers now in this country were working for a low wage in competition with American labor, which was thus being displaced. He said:

"I do not think our sugar-beet friends in the Senate have been consistent. When the tariff bill was before the Senate, every speech that was made in favor of high duties on sugar, which increases the cost of living many millions, was a plea to protect the American laboring man. The beet sugar Senators who are opposed to the (immigration) bill admit that the industry will employ largely this Mexican foreign labor."

Maybe the Senator's charge of inconsistency is true. But who ever heard of a Senator being consistent if consistency interfered with the interests of his constituents or his own political welfare?

BASEBALL AT NIGHT

League baseball will be played in Des Moines, Iowa, at night, this season, beginning on May 6, and all home games except those on Sunday will be played under artificial light.

Flood lighting of the ball park will be accomplished by 148 lights of 1,000 watts each, mounted on 90-foot steel towers. These will be distributed around the field in such a way that there will be neither glare or shadows, and it is declared that the highest flies and longest home runs will be clearly illuminated for the benefit of players and spectators.

For some time night games such as football, tennis, golf and others, have been played under artificial light, but the Des Moines field will be the first to be equipped for night baseball playing of regular leage games.

Much interest in the innovation is being shown by the followers of the national game throughout the country, and a distinguished gathering of league officials and sports writers will attend the opening game.

Arrested for stealing a piano, a Nebraska man confessed that he had taken it "in a moment of weakness." If he had been feeling right strong he probably would have carried away the house.

FEWER NAPS IN CHURCH

Religion is gaining ground if church building is any gauge, for rickety shells that once housed the faithful are passing, and some of the splendid new structures outdo old world cathedrals in beauty.

A nation-wide survey just completed by C. A. Dunham company, interantional heating engineers, reveals some interesting facts. For instances there are now about 167,000 church buildings, not counting convents, religious schools and parsonages. One-fourth are obsolete, the replacement calling for 1,600 new churches yearly. It is estimated that $218,000,000 will be spent this year.

Most new edifices are modern from basement to steeple, when there is a steeple. An interesting suggestion is made to the effect that scientific heating and ventilating are correcting the habits of pew slumberers. Preachers will doubtless agree with this further statement:

"Stagnant air and overheating have caused more naps in church than dull sermons. Churches in small towns as well as in cities are installing differential vacuum heating systems which keep temperatures uniform regardless of outside weather conditions. The large fuel saving of such scientific methods is an inducement, of course, but the comfort of discriminating congregations is perhaps the uppermost thought."

The large amount of church building under way or planned for 1930 will be an important contribution to the relief of unemployment conditions.

MUSCLE SHOALS JAM

Passed by the Senate by a nearly two-thirds vote the Norris bill for government operation of Muscle Shoals struck a snag in the House military committee where it was rejected along with all other pending bills on the same subject.

It is proposed that the House committee write an entirely new bill, which is now being framed along the lines of President Hoover's recommendation in his message to Congress last December. It would authorize the President, or a board appointed by him, to dispose of the government project by a lease to a private company, without further action by Congress.

Some members of the committee favor an additional provision for government operation in case a satisfactory lease can not be made. Just what kind of a bill will be finally reported to the House is not known at present.

So, the Muscle Shoals question is in a jam again, with slight hope for action at this session, unless the contending factions greatly modify their present attitudes.

With President Hoover and the regular Republican leaders opposed to the Norris plan and with Senator Norris opposed to everything else it looks very much like another deadlock over this 10-year-old problem:

WORLD WAR LEADERS

Reviewing what has happened to the great leaders of the Great War, among them all Hindenburg alone today occupies a high place in world affairs. Rounding out five years as president of the German republic on April 26, he is still active at the age of 83, with two years more to serve.

Of the other great military leaders, Foch, Haig, Cadorna, Diaz and Grand Duke Nicholas of the Allies are dead, as are also Moltke, Falkenhayn and Hoetzendorf of the Central Powers. All of the prominent living generals of the war are in retirement, including our own Pershing.

Among the political figures of 1914-1918, only Lloyd George is still active, and he no longer holds an important office. President Wilson, Czar Nicholas, Emperor Francis Joseph, Premier Asquith, Premier Clemenceau and Chancellor von Betham Hollweg are dead. Kaiser Wilhelm is in exile.

Thus briefly runs the story to date of those who guided the movements of more than 65 million mobilized fighting men, of whom 10 million died and 20 million were wounded, in a struggle which changed the map of the world.

SKELETON UNCOVERED IN HOME EXCAVATION

Finding a skeleton in a shallow grave just north of South San Francisco was reported Tuesday by Dr. J. C. McGovern, coroner, to the office of Sheriff James McGrath and to the San Francisco police.

The skeleton has been in the ground for several years and no marks had been found on which to base a conclusion of foul play, said Dr. McGovern. The teeth are those of a man past middle life, he said. The remains are being held at the offices of Deputy Coroner S. Nieri, South San Francisco, pending investigation, which may lead to identification.

The skeleton was discovered by Joseph Blume, who started excavation for a home at Brisbane, a subdivision on the west slope of the Black Hills, just north of South San Francisco. It was covered with only a few inches of earth, which might have washed over it, due to the slope of the ground, authorities said. No buttons nor metal objects which might lead to identification were found in the shallow grave.

"THE CRIMINAL CODE" AN INTENSELY VIVID DRAMA

Proclaimed by drama experts as one of the finest plays in the annals of the contemporary American theatre "The Criminal Code," now at the Geary Theatre, with Arthur Byron, Russell Hardie and others of the New York cast, holds audiences in the grip of its intensely moving and vivid drama from beginning to end.

"It is a greater, more powerfully moving and vastly more credible play than 'Journey's End,'" says Lloyd S. Thompson in his review of the play in the San Francisco Examiner.

Belasco and Curran have provided this Martin Flavin play with a unique production in thirteen impressive scenes. The story revolves about a young man caught in the meshes of the law as the result of a fight in a cabaret over a girl which culminated in the accidental killing of a man at the hands of the youth. What happens to a "squealer," the outbreak of a prison riot and an attempted escape are some of the vivid episodes shown in the prison scenes.

The play employs a varied multitude of sharply defined characters. Besides Mr. Byron, whose portrayal of the Warden is rated as the outstanding acting achievement of the season, Mr. Hardie as "the Boy," there are included in the excellent cast, Virgina Curley as the street walker, Walter Kingsford as the prison doctor, Thomas Findlay as the prison commissioner, Leo Curley as the principal keeper, William Franklin as a dope fiend, and Willy Morris as the warden's daughter.

FIRE FIGHTER OVERCOME IN SUTRO MANSION BLAZE

Fire departments of Menlo Park and Redwood City battled a fierce blaze that swept through the palatial home of Alfred Sutro, general counsel for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., on Polhemus avenue, Atherton, shortly after 9 o'clock Monday morning.

The fire, which gutted walls and first floor of the two-story home, a showplace in the milionaire colony, did damagae estimated at more than $15,000.

Assistant Fire Chief Steve Gilbert, of the Menlo department, was overcome by smoke while fighting the blaze. He was rescued by fellow firemen and rushed to the Palo Alto hospital, where he was revived.

SIDELIGHTS

The timely arrival of a census enumerator gave Uncle Sam one more name to tally than he would have had if the enumerator had called a few minutes later. The census man found Sam Bianco, of New York, lying on the floor of his room unconscious from escaping gas. He opened the windows, revived Bianco, waited until his patient could talk, got the desired data and went his way.

It is said that every dog has his day, and in Kentucky every dog may have his day in court. Formerly dogs caught in the act of killing sheep could be shot on the spot without recourse on the part of the owner. Under a new law, before a dog may be killed his crime must be proved through legal procedure. It is assumed that sheep will not be eligible as jurymen.

Another bridge story from New York: Miss Daisy Tunick held 13 spades; bid 8 spades; got set one. Fortunately for Daisy, her partner was unarmed, but he used violent language and the game broke up.

Sally Gallant, of Newcastle, Pa., wants to live up to her name by engaging in a hazardous adventure. She has asked a Prague inventor to allow her to take a passage on a rocket which he expects to shoot to the moon. In her letter she said: "I am five feet four inches tall, weigh 138 pounds and am a blonde."

Discarding as meaningless such conventional names as John Doe and Richard Roe, commonly applied to unknown persons in a court action, Maude McLemore, of Washington, used more expressive terms to describe three men who defrauded her in a real estate transaction. She brought suit against "Robber, Trimmer and Skinner," adding that the real names will be supplied as soon as they can be found out.

A couple who went through a marriage cermeony in an airplane over Paris found themselves still "up in the air" when they sought to be officially recorded as man and wife. Government authorities informed them that civil marriage in France can only take place legally when performed by the mayor in the town hall.

Weak from hunger, Jesus Modrano, a Mexican cripple of New Orleans, meditated on how to obtain food, when a bright idea came. Mustering his remaining strength he smashed a plate glass window worth $116 and awaited the police. In his jail cell he enjoyed his first full meal in several days.

One of the few cases on record in which a man has indulged in embezzlement and gambling and got away with it is that of Lorne Mallory, of New York. He stole $10,000 from the Guaranty Trust Company while an employee; took a vacation; won $11,000 on a horse race; repaid the amount of his theft, and was placed on probation by the judge who heard his confession.

John Sankavich, of Chicago, is a peaceful citizen who never noses into his neighbors' affairs, and he doesn't understand why other folks can not be equally considerate. When a census enumerator began asking him questions, John said: "I mind my business and you mind yours."

Truth in the movies got a boost in Boston the other day when a Dr. Davenport was prevented from showing a picture depicting an African cannibal in connection with a lecture. The "cannibal" reported to the police that he had never been in Africa, but was a Harlem janitor to whom the "doctor" owed about $900 for starring in the cannibalistic role.

Jack Kearns, formerly Jack Dempsey's manager, continues to have hard luck. Stopping at a Chicago hotel, he was robbed of $6,500 worth of clothing, including six pairs of blue silk pajamas and six silk lounging robes.

Recently through inadvertence a Philadelphia newspaper used the headline "Tours" over its column of death notices. No doubt those concerned took the tours, all right, but none had round-trip tickets.

An industrial note states that 80 electric motors, totalling 270 horsepower, are used in a Joliet, Ill., plant manufacturing macaroni. The item might have been made more interesting if it had stated the daily mileage of the macaroni produced.

A public meeting in the New York city hall in connection with the anti-noise campaign had to be postponed because the municipal band was playing a scheduled concert outside and the speakers could not be heard. In such a case the first step in noise suppression would seem to be to abolish the band.

JUNIOR BASEBALL FINALS FOR CALIFORNIA SET

National officials of the American Legion have fixed the week of August 11 for the play-off for the Regional Junior Baseball Championship for California, Utah, Arizona and Nevada. Plans are being perfected to conduct this play-off at Stockton. Final State championship games will be concluded at Long Beach a week or so before the regional play-off. The Western sectional tournament, comprising all states west of the Mississippi river, will, it is expected, be held at Colorado Springs, Colorado, from August 21 to August 23.

Reports of Walter J. Hicks, of Sacramento, State Chairman of the Legion Junior Baseball Committee, indicates that approximately 10,000 boys throughout California are already signed up to play on the various teams sponsored by American Legion Posts.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Tradition

MUCH that we are—much that we hope to be, rests on the cornerstone of our community—TRADITION! This cornerstone is the foundation upon which to build the living center which was the vision of our stalwart forbears.

What we have achieved as a community we owe to the loyal effort and the invincible spirit of our Civic Forefathers—effort and spirit which has characterized American communities up thru the hard-lived years since the landing of the Mayflower.

Our fathers and grandfathers, amid more humble surroundings, visioned a prosperous, happy living center. Generations of loyal, hardy citizenship has helped in its realization. It is from these intrepid men and women we gain the inspiration for our work. To them we owe our present day opportunities.

Why did they spend the years of effort if not to challenge—to spur us to further achievement?

Why have we these spirited American traditions—of which our community is so much a part—if not to urge us to CARRY ON!

New times have brought new problems—new methods and industries; new communication and transportation systems; new problems requiring new answers; new emergencies demanding new strategy.

We face the task of taking stock of what we have—raising the standards of our community according to national comparisons—strengthening the fabric of our community life and building on to further growth, prosperity and happiness.

THERE IS NO STANDING STILL—WE MOVE FORWARD—OR, WE MOVE BACKWARD.

We present this page in appreciation of the rich heritage left us by "those who went before" and in realization of responsibility to our sons and daughters.

FISH AND GAME NOTES

By J. H. NEUSTADT

Work to "Save the Klamath" has necessitated continued vigilance.

Hearings on the subject have been held with Secretary of Interior Wilbur, particularly with reference to the contemplated changes in the boundaries of the Hoopa Indian reservation. It is essential that this vigilance be maintained if the Klamath is to be kept free from power encroachments, which would absolutely ruin this wonderful fishing stream and cut off from the state its principal source of supply for eggs for fish propagation.

In co-operation with the Shasta Valley Rod and Gun Club, 150 metal enameled signs have been posted along the upper Klamath river, warning anglers and recreationists of the danger from rapid rises in the water. This is an important safeguard to public safety.

Through the efforts of the Associated Sportsmen, legislation has been secured prohibited the taking of salmon in the ocean within three miles of the mouth of the Klamath river, and a study is now being made of the cannery situation at the mouth of the Klamath to determine means of securing its removal.

In line with the program for pollution elimination, the city of San Francisco has been prevailed upon to adopt an ordinance which prohibits the dumping of waste oil in the city sewers. This will save thousands of fish, clams and crabs, as well as shrimps and other food for ducks. It will also keep our beaches free from contamination and is a valuable safeguard to public health.

Pollution along Carquinez Straits in the vicinity of Avon, Martinez and Oleum has been largely eliminated.

The Association assisted in the passage by congress of the Norbeck-Anderson Game Refuge bill, which will provide Federal funds for the creation of waterfowl refuges.

The Association has persistently advocated the propagation of black bass, particularly the small mouth bass, for planting in hundreds of miles of streams at present devoid of any game fish. As a result, the first brood pond will be established by the Commission at Oroville in the very near future, in conjunction with our member club, the Feather River Rod and Gun Club. From this modest start we should soon be able to extend the work so that suitable streams can be stocked with this noteworthy game fish and provide good fishing in many lakes and streams where fishing does not exist at present.

The Association secured legislation removing protection from predatory animals in several districts, making it possible to increase control work among known destructive species, which will mean a great saving to valuable game.

The Association has also secured legislation protecting abalones along the Mendocino county coast, where they have been taken by truckload in the past, seriously endangering the future supply.

In co-operation with a member club at Sonora, success in establishing a large deer refuge in Tuolumne county has been attained. This refuge was badly needed to enable the deer to stage a comeback, as thousands of deer were killed in that section several years ago during an epidemic.

MODERN CABLE PRODUCT OF LONG EVOLUTION

Telephone cables have been in use since 1879, and in 1888 a cable somewhat similar to those in use today was manufactured. It contained fifty pairs of wires and made possible a great reduction in open wire systems.

By 1892, 100 pairs of wires in cable had been made possible, and by 1901, a cable with 400 pairs of wires was put into service.

From that time on, progress has been rapid. Cables containing 900 pairs of wires were laid underground in 1912, and today cables are available containing 1,818 pairs of wires, but the diameter of the cable is only a bit greater than the original fifty pair cable of 1888, which was about two-thirds as thick as the present cables.

The first cables were of rubber or gutta-percha, but experiments soon proved that the introduction of cotton into the cable instead of rubber was feasible. Cotton insulation was finally superseded by paper. In the modern cables each wire is separated from the others by a spiral wrapping of manila paper, and all are enclosed in a continuous lead sheathing which protects the wires and assures continuous and practically uninterrupetd telephone service.

NEW SHOW WORLD AT DALY CITY THEATRE

The Daly City Theatre will present all of the first run specials for the coming season under the banner of New Show World Attractions. Recent contracts signed with the world's greatest producers by Ray L. Kelsall, the manager, assures Daly City partons the entire product of the studios of Paramount, First National Vitaphone, United Artists, Radio Keith Orpheum, Tiffany Stahl and World Wide Pictures ahead of all competitors in the district houses.

This will bring to Daly City direct from the first run Mission district showing which usually play either the New Mission Theatre or the El Capitan, such attractions as Maurice Chevalier in "The Love Parade," Paramount "On Parade," "The Song of Flame," with Bernice Claire, Ronald Colman in "Condemned," Gloria Swanson in "The Tresspasser," and many others too numerous to mention.

Many startling improvements in the Colorart Sound System have been made and will present these super de luxe picture plays with an excellence of tonal quality that will not be found in other houses of like size.

Remember, all of the talkie hits will play Daly City first in the district houses, just forty days after the Market street run, and you are assured with the names of the producers that you will receive the world's greatest quality products.

SPLINTERS

From the H. H. Smith Lumber Yard

VOLUME 3 FRIDAY, MAY 2, 1930 NUMBER 40

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

Who Will Raise It?

Prof.: "The window should be opened. (Louder.) Mr. Jones, will you open it?"

Jones (waking up): "I'll open it for four bits."

Jerry: "Would you say yes if I proposed?"

Thelma: "Sure I would, if you proposed going to a movie."

Do you keep your house in good repair? Nothing deteriorates faster than a neglected house. It's like a bad tooth. Every time the least little break is left unmended, it brings trouble.

A Cutting Remark

And then there's the Scotchman who accidentally spilled some iodine. To keep it from going to waste he had to cut his finger.

Better Not

He: "Let's get tied."
She: "Lets knot."

Ring us up when you need Building Material.

Culture

"I hear your son's at college."

"Yep."

"How's he doing?"

"Oh, pretty good, I guess. He's taking three courses. I've just paid out ten dollars for Latin, ten dollars for Greek, and a hundred dollars for Scotch."

She: "Do you think it's unlucky to get married on Friday?"

He: "Of course! Why should Friday be an exception?"

You Know

The jury had been dead-locked for two days. The foreman of the jury came to the door and said to the bailiff:

"Send in eleven dinners and a bale of hay."

Yes, we sell Paints and Oils—the best.

"I don't mind having 'rings on my fingers,'" he said, as he limped from the dance, "but hang me if I can stand for 'belles on my toes.'"

Are all fishermen liars, or are all liars fishermen?
